Perfectly Ms. Matched (Rocky Mountain Matchmaker Series Book 2)

Synopsis

After losing a patient in a tragic accident, Jo Westin left her physical therapy job and risked it all when she opened up her dream café. A year later, her new business is a hit. Jo wants to expand her selection of decadent truffles, gooey bars, and silky cheesecakes, to keep up with customer demand, but the banks aren't biting on her loan plan. Not only are the banks resisting her tempting treats, so are the men in her life. Going home to an empty house every night is getting old, so she asks her best friend, Shelby, a matchmaker, to get busy finding her perfect match while she finds a plan B for her café expansion. Chad Jenks, an injured NFL wide receiver needs his former fiancée like never before. Jo was one of the best physical therapists he'd ever worked with, and he wants someone he can trust to keep the extent of his injuries a secret. However, there are two huge obstacles standing in his way. First, Jo quit her PT job last year. And second, he was the last person Jo would ever want to help. Football always came first in his life—that's how he'd lost Jo nine years earlier. But he has a plan: he has lots of money for Jo's expansion, and even some secret ammo he'd only use if he had to. Ready to grovel if necessary, he's determined to regain Jo's PT skills, but even more than that, he still yearns for her forgiveness. And maybe even her love. Can two people so hurt they vowed to never speak again eat enough humble pie to fix more than just Chad's broken knee?

Customer Reviews

This book is hard to rate because I HATED the male lead with a passion. He is an absolute dick for most of the book and I hated the choices he made and the things he did from other women to how he treated the woman he claimed to love during this story but also for the past nine years. However at the last second he redeems himself and finally makes a decision I could respect and so I enjoyed the ending. That said I hated him and you will too. So if you read this book be prepared for that. Our hero in this story is Chad and I use that term extremely loosely because Chad is a d*ck and that's me being polite. For him he lives and breathes football so much so that when the heroine, 9 years before was pregnant he abandoned her during her pregnancy and believed she tricked him into getting pregnant. Then when she delivers a preemie 3 months early, he plays his football game, celebrates with his team and does not go see his new son. His son then dies two days later and he only arrived at the hospital as it happens. Our heroine, Jo throws him out and in his sorrow he then sleeps with anything that moves including marrying a woman after his money who cheats and then steals his child and then abandons the child with Chad. Then Chad, Ryan (his son), live with another floozy who is after his money up until one month before the story starts. She only leaves him because he is injured playing football and can't support the lifestyle he wants. That is when Chad decides to head home to see Jo and ask her to help get him back to football with her PT skills. If all that was not bad enough, Jo has given up PT and is now a cafe owner who does not know Chad financed the place and is her landlord. He and her best friend did this behind her back.
