I just finished reading Valentino Rossi's autobiography, "What I have never tried". Wow! I have to say that I'm the kind of person that if you want to tell me a story.. make a movie about it. I'm not a book reader. In fact back in school every time I have to read a book for a test or a book report I always find the way of having somebody to read it for me and give me highlights or do the report for me. For some reason I always lose interest in a book after a couple of pages. Some times half way into the book. For my B-day last January a friend of mine and his wife, knowing how much I admire Valentino Rossi, preorder me his autobiography. I finally got. When I first got the book, I thought.. "Well, is just going to be like all the other books, a few pages and I'm done, or may be half way through it." I have no idea how wrong I was. From the first page I was hooked. It didn't start with the usual boring autobiography saying "I was born in.. blah blah blah..." From the first page it grabs your attention. Needless to say, I loved reading the book. It is very interesting and funny. Love the story about his transition from Honda to Yamaha. All the "secret" encounters in the paddock. My favorite part of the book is when he talks about his gags and how elaborate and well plan they are. The inflatable doll, the traffic ticket, the toilet stop, etc...It made me laugh a lot. The stories about when he was a kid are great. It also tells the reasons of why he decided to leave Honda and why Yamaha was the right choice. If you are a racing fan it is a must read book. It will definitely grab your attention. No other book had made me visualize the story in my mind.. like I was there.
